

WITH HER CHINESE PUPIL.

EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD GRACE FRENCH SUPPOSED TO HAVE FLOPED.

The worst of it is that Lee Tad, her companion, has a wife and two children in China. A blow to the practice of the Chinese is that Lee Tad, who is a native of the United States, is a native of the United States.

The following letter, signed by three Chinese, was sent to THE SUN on Thursday:

"TO THE N. Y. MORNING SUN: We do not oppose an American girl to marry an intelligent, well-educated Chinese providing that he loves her, cherishes her, and properly supports her.

"When a girl who has lost her own respect and married a common ignorant Chinese launderman, who has already a wife and two children in China, it is time for our respectable Chinese to call 'Stop'."

"There will be a marriage of this kind."

"A Miss Grace French, who resides at 8 Auburn place, Brooklyn, will soon be married to an ignorant launderman named Lee Tad, alias Edward W. Lee."

"For the good name of the respectable Chinese we have tried to prevent such a marriage among ourselves."

"In this case the girl is to be blamed, for she turns a deaf ear to the advice of all her friends and also to his."

"Now we wish to spare a little space in your valuable columns to denounce such an outrage; for it is a disgrace to the American public, to the respectable Chinese, and to those who have honorably married in this country."

"LEE HIN, 'Joe Tsai,' 'Joe Tsai,'"

All day yesterday and the day before the house at 8 Auburn place, Brooklyn, where French and her family live, preserved the appearance of being untroubled. The shutters of the upper story, which were closed and the shades behind them drawn down.

Mr. French and his daughter Grace, were within, but it was known in the neighborhood that the girl was to be married. The neighbors did not know what to make of it until the young lady, Grace, told them that she was to be married to a Chinese.

Her sister Grace had been missing since Wednesday and they thought she had run off with Lee Tad.

Mr. French, who is a native of the United States, is a native of the United States.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

There are from thirty to forty pupils every day at the school and the regular meeting is held on the second of each month.

MRS. HUGHES BUYS A COWHIDE.

With it she Presents a Bitter Insult from Mrs. McDonald.

For nearly ten years George and Alice Hughes of Williamsburg, have applied to her. Hughes was a truckman. Three years after their marriage a little boy was born. Trouble came only when the husband got to visiting Mamie Lyons last fall. He had known her years before. The girl now was called Mrs. McDonald, and she had a little child. When Mrs. Hughes first heard the gossip about the two she refused to believe it. Her husband denied it, and that was sufficient for awhile. When he began to treat her coldly, however, and to stay out late every night she began to doubt. Her husband did not work regularly now and barely supported the family. Finally she learned that he was giving his money to Mrs. McDonald. Then she resolved to find out the truth.

One night last winter she found the two together in a little room. Her husband had his arm around the woman's waist. Mrs. Hughes was in the room. She saw the woman with an umbrella. Her husband sneezed and the woman bent her head. When Mrs. Hughes came home afterward she told him what she had seen. He said that he could support her. So she hired a room in a tenement at 25 Skiffman avenue and hid there. She came back after a while and wanted to live with her. She consented at last upon the condition that she should have a man. He said he would, but didn't. Then his wife would have nothing to do with him again, although he refused any money.

Three weeks ago there was another baby born to Mrs. Hughes. On Thursday she took the baby and went to the home in Manhattan avenue. On her way back she passed the house at 25 Skiffman avenue. She saw the woman with an umbrella. Her husband sneezed and the woman bent her head. When Mrs. Hughes came home afterward she told him what she had seen. He said that he could support her. So she hired a room in a tenement at 25 Skiffman avenue and hid there. She came back after a while and wanted to live with her. She consented at last upon the condition that she should have a man. He said he would, but didn't. Then his wife would have nothing to do with him again, although he refused any money.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

"You got the children, but I've got the man," she said.

Simply Awful

The Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Complete and Permanent Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

10 Bottles $10. Over 1,000 Per Cent. of Profit.

In the Battle of Giants, Hood's Sarsaparilla was Scrofula, the former is always victorious if fairly and honestly tried. It is the only evidence of its wonderful powers needed than this from Mr. George W. Turner, a young farmer of Galway, Saratoga county, a few miles north of Amsterdam, N. Y.:

"If they were such as to cause a loathing and disgust simply to look at, then I must have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

"I have been for me to endure for 10 years more."

ALL KNEW OF IT BUT WARD.

NOBODY BOLD ENOUGH TO TELL HIM HIS SON WAS MARRIED.

The Young Folks Waited Awhile Expecting to see the father, but at last they saw him. The father was married. Why the Marriage Was Kept Secret.

Although Mr. Ward McAllister did not know until May 8 that his son Howard had been married for nearly five years to Miss Janie Chapman Garmany of Savannah, the young man's mother and sister knew it long before, and a good many of his friends knew that he was married. But nobody was bold enough to tell Mr. Ward McAllister.

Young Mr. McAllister is described as a handsome woman of twenty-five, who is very fond of animals and outdoor life. Her husband also delights in riding, hunting, and other open-air exercises. They were engaged to be married for some time before the secret marriage, and the engagement was known to both families. It was broken off once because of a lovers' quarrel, but quickly renewed again.

Young Mr. McAllister has two brothers in New York, as well as a number of friends. Among the latter are Julien T. Davies and Edward Lyman Short, of the law firm of Davies, Short & Tamm. They acted as legal advisers recently, and it was the correspondence between them and Commissioner Galvin, young McAllister's attorney, which caused the publication of the marriage notices.

Mr. Short said yesterday that the marriage had been kept secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.

Mr. Short said that the marriage was a secret because Howard McAllister was dependent upon his father and had been hoping that he would manage to get an income of his own. He had been ill for some time, however, and had been unable to do anything. He was seized with the grip early in the past winter, and had been indisposed ever since. He was at the door of the office of Tiers & Co. at 11 Beaver street, as secretary of a cable company, but he was not there when the marriage was announced.